MASMID 1987

MASMID

YESHIVA UNIVERSITY 1987

Dear Graduates:

This yearbook represents arduous, laborious, intense, often tedious, and thankless hours of work. Welcome to the finished product. It is intended not only to chronicle the past four years of your lives, but to inspire giggles, chuckles, etc. . . . from your spouses and children in the future. We wanted this to be entertaining, so don't be surprised by what you may see. We have caught you in the MOST compromising positions. Furthermore, we have drawn our material from those oddball lectures you will never forget, your hopes, dreams, and passions as eloquently expressed in the dormitory hallways, and from leading comical and political geniuses of our time. You will want to pull it out whenever you get the opportunity and display it proudly to everybody, just like you might do with your, oh, I don't know . . . diploma. Yeah, that's it! Isn't that special?

Enjoy! Let us remember these unbelieveable years as some of the best in our lives.

Your friends,

David Finkelstein
Steven Fried

Every institution owes an incalculable debt to quiet, unassuming leaders with vision. Max Etra guaranteed the future of Yeshiva at a time when its very survival was in doubt. From 1953 to 1977, Mr. Etra served faithfully as chairman of the Board of Trustees of Yeshiva University. His generosity and dedication over the quarter century made possible the revitalization of Yeshiva that we have been privileged to witness and enjoy.

On March 25, 1987, Max Etra was honored at the Student Centennial Celebration. He spoke with a fond intimacy, recalling the challenge and excitement of his years of leadership. The reminiscences he shared were colored with affection and pride.

It is thus with affection and pride that we dedicate MASMID 1987 to the memory of Mr. Max J. Etra, alav hashalom. May his example serve as inspiration to us as we look to our future.

The future looms before us, somewhat inviting, somewhat intimidating.
As Yeshiva University graduates, though, we are uniquely qualified to guide Orthodox Judaism into the 1990's. In a world filled with modified truths and altered faith, we bear the responsibility of ensuring that traditional practice and modern living coalesce to form a vibrant, organic religious lifestyle.

Our generation has been endowed with the miraculous restoration of Israel to Jewish hands. But the State's existence represents a challenge as well.
Though mired in social, political and military crises, Israel offers the potential for revitalization of faith, from Brooklyn to Beersheva to Bialystok. Every Jew, whether imprisoned in Siberia or ensconced in the suburbs,
may turn to Jerusalem
as the locus of spirituality and the cradle of Mashiach.

We can fulfill our destiny if we pursue our goals with energy tempered with sensitivity, dedicated to unifying all Jews under the banner of Torah.
As a bastion of traditionalism in harmony with today's society, we remain loyal to our past in order to forge a brilliant future.

TO THE YESHIVA COLLEGE CLASS OF 1987

I offer my congratulations to each and every one of you upon your graduation from Yeshiva College. I have no doubt that the years you spent at Yeshiva will stand you in good stead as you make your way into the future.

"Judaism and the Future" -- the theme of your yearbook -- is certainly appropriate. (I wish I would have thought of it when I was literary editor of Masmid in '49!) It is to you and those like you to whom the present generation of Jewish leadership entrusts the future of Torah Judaism. May you use your intellectual, emotional, and spiritual talents to bring glory to Judaism, the Jewish people, Israel, and to our heavenly Father as you fulfill yourselves as human beings and as benei Torah.

Good luck!

Cordially yours,

NORMAN LAMM
President

OFFICE OF THE DEAN

May 28, 1987

Dear Graduates,

I congratulate you on the successful completion of your studies at Yeshiva College. You now join more than a half-century of alumni with whom you share not only an alma mater but also a commitment to the unique mission of Yeshiva University.

For four years this commitment has motivated you to pursue a rigorous dual curriculum which has challenged you to integrate traditional Torah study with what is best in Western culture.

This challenge continues beyond graduation and your success in meeting it will be reflected in how you live your lives and pursue your careers. You are fortunate in having as models thousands of alumni who have demonstrated through their lives and careers that this challenge can be met and that the Torah u'Madda ideal retains its vitality.

And so, as you leave Yeshiva College, I wish you well and I remind you of the dictum of Rabbi Tarfon: "It is not your duty to complete the task but you are not free to desist from it."

Sincerely,

Norman S. Rosenfeld
Dean

After a long, hard day, would you rather come home to a fat mom or a skinny mom?

Skinny Mom: Take a jog around the block. Your blood will circulate faster and you will start feeling much better.

Fat Mom: Here. Have some devil dogs and peanut chews, and there are jelly beans in the pantry. When you wake up from that sugar coma, it will be a brand new world.

A Chorus Line

It's like I have two minds, and one mind has a funny bone.

Rav Kahn

I was watching a horror movie on TV. I love horror movies, but the people in them are sooo stupid. Really. There are weird, eerie sounds in the background, like the sound of bats flying around and whining from black cats. And it's pouring outside. A really wild storm, with thunder and lightning. You start munching faster. And with that music and the shrieks in the background, and the storm, any idiot knows that something is going to happen. On this night, Jane McAllen, they always have names like that, ventures out. On a night like that, I would stay home. Anyway, she starts her car. By this time, I'm almost choking on the popcorn, and the music is shrieking louder and louder. Something is going to happen, and soon. I can't take it anymore, so I yell, "Jane, Idiot, go home. Turn the car around and go home." She just keeps driving. Then, her car breaks down. The whole cemetery is shrieking in the background by now. Bats are flying across the screen. I spilled my soda all over the chair. And from inside the car, you can see that the storm has gotten worst. Lightning keeps flashing across the windshield. I can see that she does not know what to do. So I pleaded with her," Jane, listen to me honey, don't move. I'm coming to get you." By this time I had on my jacket and was searching for the car keys. Bang, bang, crash. The thunder and lightning sound like they are in the living room. I screamed, "I'm coming, I just need to find the keys." So what does she do? In her infinite wisdom, she opens the door and gets out of the car. I thought, "Jane, Jane, Jane. I said I'd come and get you." "But you wouldn't listen." So she's walking along the road trying to duck lightning bolts. Her shoes are filled with water and going squish, squish, squish. Cars are whizzing by. More squishing. Then, her car whizzes by. "Jane, stop! Don't continue." Then, in the distance she spots a huge ugly mansion. Bats and things are flying out the windows. The shrieks are coming from that direction. So she goes there . . . for help. Jane is obviously an inordinately logical and intelligent person. My living room is a mess by now. The music whines louder and louder. Jane gets closer to the house. Squish, squish, squish. Lightning almost hits her. I peed on the floor. Jane gets closer to the house. There is a big watchdog on the porch waving at her saying, "Go home. Go home," So she walks up the steps.

THE LEGEND

Lyrics by HESH REPHUN
Music by SETH STAVSKY

A little boy's been walking on a summer day;
The sun is setting and he's lost his way—
It will be night-time in the forest soon;
He finds an oak that's seen twelve hundred moons.

He seeks direction from this tree so old and wise—
So little time, to make up his mind;
The oak's no stranger to the fear in children's eyes—
He's wiped away their tears—for a hundred years.

(CHORUS)

So believe in this legend—when you're lost or alone, Don't lose faith in the legend—willing to face the unknown;
In a new century—such a sweet melody,
Playing on—playing on—
For the sake of the song.

A CHALLENGE AND AN OPPORTUNITY

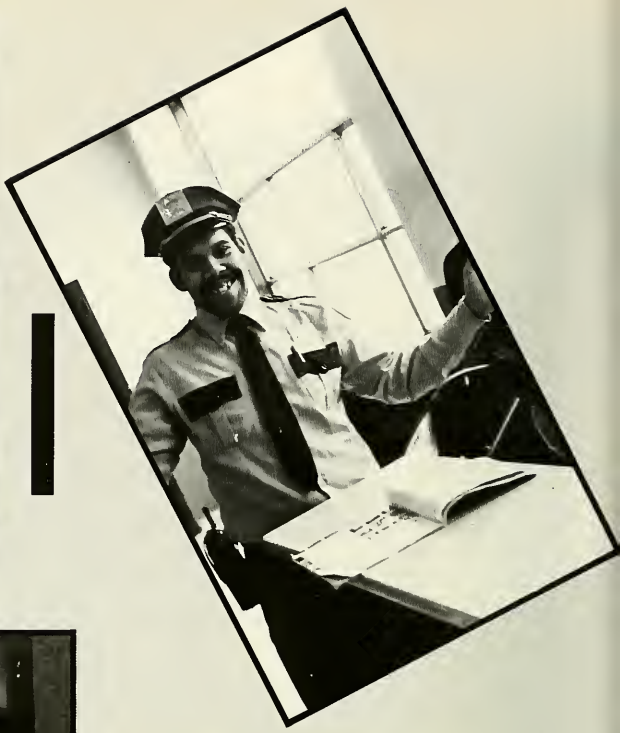
YESHIVA UNIVERSITY CENTENNIAL

It is a great pleasure for me to send greetings to the students, staff, alumni and friends of Yeshiva University as you celebrate your 100th anniversary.

For a century Yeshiva University has maintained a tradition of excellence and creativity. Its history—representing as it does both freedom of secular inquiry and freedom of religion—is the story of America. The knowledge which its students have gained will help them to contribute to the betterment of this nation and the world.

Nancy joins me in wishing you Mazel Tov and another 100 years of success.

Ronald Reagan



An elephant doesn't know what's going with the elephant next to him, never mind the whole zoo.

Rav Kahn

That car is like a human being.

It breaks down on the side of the highway. I beg it to work. I talk nicely to it. Never raise my voice. I say, "Look at all the other cars; they're moving." All I get is a grunt. "Well what am I supposed to do? I treat you like my own child. I buy you new brake shoes. You won't wear them."

Spring in the Iranian Style

Pourang Bral

With the blushful blooms, the bird sang,
The beautiful spring finally sprang.
Over the winter traces, demolished,
the glorious spring a citadel established.
Its reign spreading worldwide,
gave warmth to the domestic and the wild.
Its flag of greens and flower in nations awakened the wish and desire to go to the fields, vegetating, to see its glorious triumph, exhilarating.
For it did not only the winter defeat,
it conquered also the hearts that beat.

OUT OF MANY, ONE

(for Yeshiva University's Centennial Year Commencement, 1987)

Dr. Will Lee

Was it ever easy?
Dante imaged G-d as a point, a core of light
Illuminating the cosmos from the inside out
While rabbis illumined G-d's Torah
Which word by word illumined the cosmos,
Yet all souls were haunted by shadows of death.

The music of concentric spheres,
The perfect order of realms above the moon —
One G-d conducted that cosmic harmony,
Yet mutable Renaissance man,
Distracted by the tides of change,
Could only catch a note here,
A phrase there.

Does it not seem harder now
To juggle so many spheres,
Some petty, others massive,
Which center on what still point?
The self? The world? The Torah? G-d?
Too much to keep in balance, harmonize.

Educated fragment by fragment,
We hardly seem to recognize our own urge
To integrate our aspects into selves.
Can each of us fall any further apart?
Can any center hold?

Disparate disciplines, text upon text
Upon text, overarched
By the freedom to specialize,
By the search for truths, no matter how many.

True-hearted action
Frittered away in errands
Forgetful of faith.

Making a living
Through some careening career
Or other.

Texts upon texts
Whose values compete among themselves,
Let alone with knowledge, actions, skills.

For G-d's sake who are we?
What are we doing?
What do we stand for?

The lone and level sands
Stretch out toward silence.

With self-fulfillment banished,
The learning, the action
Is whose?

The world neglected,
Who can live?
Or wants to?
With whom?

The Torah furled,
Who knows how to live,
Or why?

G-d forgotten,
What gives rise to meaning?
Being?

Perhaps we underestimate what freedom —
More than mere acceptance of necessity —
Can choose to stand for.
Perhaps, while keeping our eyes on actual truths,
We can still choose to balance
Self and other, sympathy and justice,
The worthy action driven by self-confidence
While mindful of the will of G-d.

Perhaps from seeming fragments,
Objects, tools,
Reading, learning,
The art of experience,
Pulling its pieces together,
While turning itself inside out,
The Torah/Mada being can commence
Its own slow work of art:
Can see the world in grains of sand;
Can melt, can fuse its fragments;
Can shape a vessel
To buoy its own soul;
Can sculpt its world
In the image of G-d.

Congratulations to Dr. William Lee on his being named favorite professor of the year by the Senior class.

OH, THE

Time has passed so quickly since September
Many things we hope we will remember
Looking back with chuckle and a sneer
At the highlights of our Senior year

Bakker earned the nickname "Reverend Quickie"
The teflon President — he got all sticky
Iran? The Contras? Ronnie didn't know.
T'was all a blank since "Bedtime for Bonzo"

We caught the wave that brought Max Headroom
Saw Gary Hart caught in the bedroom
With Donna Rice, who proved her flair
For carrying out domestic affairs.

On Star Trek IV they saved the whales
In Rocky IV, Stallone prevails
Old films in color now are seen
Thanks to men who worship green

We saw the Leonard-Hagler fight,
A quiz show starring Vanna White
The question to be answered right:
"What will Vanna wear tonight?"

Now that Liberace's dead
Sales of fur coats fell like lead
Designers, though, absorbed the hurt
By bringing back the mini skirt

While Coke and Pepsi fought it out
Spuds Mackenzie pulled a rout
The party animal made things bright
A thousand watts of cold Bud Light.

We saw them trying Bernhard Goetz
Saw condoms on our TV sets
AIDS has made the people pure
Until the doctors find a cure.

We bade farewell to Doctor J.
Len Bias never got to play
His goodbye was all in vain
Another victim of cocaine.

The Mets — they did the Red Sox in
New Yorkers, though, are suffering
The Knicks are still embarrassing.

U.S. JETS HIT 'TERRORIST CENTERS' IN LIBYA; REAGAN WARNS OF NEW ATTACKS IF NEEDED; ONE PLANE MISSING IN RAIDS ON 5 TARGETS

To the Class of 1987:

At last, the long-awaited day has arrived for you, and, armed with the newly-received sheepskin, you confidently step forward to grapple with the challenges of the "real" world. Your period of preparation for adulthood — especially the nearly two decades of general education — is officially over.

If, however, you look back and try to make sense of the last phase of this apprenticeship, the phase known as "college," you will probably be at sea. All those rapidly changing laws of science, all those often conflicting versions of reality in the Humanities, all those unprovable theories in the Social Sciences — what vision of life can they possibly add up to? Does, in short, a liberal arts education really make one wiser?

Yes and no. If by wisdom is meant "The Answer," college can never give you that. But if wisdom is understood as the intelligent search for answers after one has been informed of the complexity of things by being offered, even overwhelmed by, the many questions in life, then college has made you wiser.

Someone once safely said, "Education if confusion." That is, you came to college stuffed with certitudes and platitudes that masqueraded as answers and now you know that you then did not, and still do not, know. That is wisdom, or at least the beginning of it. The best that higher education can do is to teach one how to think. Yeshiva College has therefore given you the tools for finding The Answer, or at least some answers. You can now use those tools, sharpen and oil them, add to them. Or you can, as unfortunately too many do, just throw them into the toolshed to rust unused.

The choice is yours.

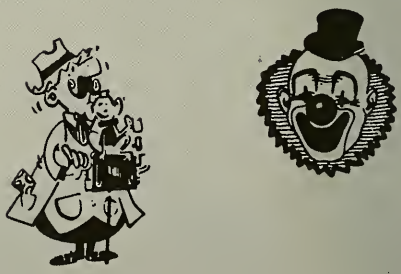
LEGAL COUNSEL

By Eli Clark

I sat at the edge of my bed with my hands clasped under my chin. "I don't know. Law school demands such a major commitment. Not just in terms of money — although that's certainly a factor — but law school will cost me three years of my life. What right have I to sequester myself in law libraries for so long while the rest of the world spins furiously along? every day brings escalating tensions, new crises and turmoil. There is so much to be done, so much I feel I can contribute. What sort of alibi would I have with, 'I've been busy in law school'?"

John jumped excitedly to his feet. "Your problem is that you regard law school as an escape, a cop-out. Consider instead that a law education can prepare you to assume greater responsibility, to effect greater change. It doesn't matter whether you actually become an attorney or not, your abilities and skills will be honed and refined in law school; they'll carry you to heights you never dreamed of. Look at me — when I graduated from law school, I hadn't an inkling that I would eventually become White House Chief of Staff."

"You know, I think you're right. God, I've learned so much from you, Mr. Ehrlichman. I feel lucky to have been your cellmate."



Join the Circus, Sonny.

FOUR YEARS AGO, YOU PROBABLY NEVER HEARD OF:

This was the year of Joe Isuzu, the lying car salesman, who won numerous advertising awards for his creators. Meet Joe YU the student who means one thing, but says another.

Joe YU: I'm always in Shiur.

Really: He's lying. He goes late and leaves the minute the Rabbi blinks.

Joe YU: I make Minyan every day.

Really: For Mincha.

Joe YU: I was very sick for the past two days, but I'm feeling much better now.

Really: He was in Atlantic City, got back at 6:00 AM, and slept off his hangover.

Joe YU: I studied for weeks for this test. I just can't understand what could have happened.

Really: He studied last night, between Johnny Carson and David Letterman. He knows exactly what happened.

Joe YU: I'm director of the Aspiring Collegiates Club of Santiago, Chile.

Really: He's lying. They only claim to be located across North America.

Roshei Yeshiva's '50s Party

The Roshei Yeshiva and the sophomore class have announced that they will jointly sponsor a 1750's party to provide RIETS students with proper and relevant role models. The party is scheduled to begin with practical implementations of Frankist thought and conclude with the showing of the film Greasy, which deals with the conflict of the chasidim and mitnagdim of Vilna for possession of the Holy Quail.

Rabbis Eyebeschutz and Emden are scheduled to discuss pluralism in Judaism, and John Adams will lecture on the question of taxation without representation as it relates to terumah and Agudas Yisroel dues. Students will also participate in a reenactment of the Bostoner Tea Tish. Some talmidim suggested the participation of women in the event, but the Roshei Yeshiva ruled that it would be inappropriate in the light of the second class status of women in eighteenth century society. Attendance is expected to be high nonetheless as the event is scheduled to run from 9 — 11:30 A.M., at which time students have no conflicting commitments. Rabbi Blau asked all talmidim to avoid the beit midrash the morning of the party to show support for the Roshei Yeshiva.

"There is a kind of greatness which does not depend upon fortune; it is a certain manner that distinguishes us, and which seems to destine us for great things; it is the value we insensibly set upon ourselves; it is by this quality, that we gain the deference of other men, and it is this which commonly raises us more above them, than birth, rank or even merit itself."

You have made us very proud. With much love and success in all you do.
